FOREWORD

Some thirty-five years ago, the wish came to me to study the Yoga-Sutra-s of Patanjali, and the Bhashya thereon of Vyasa, in the original Samskrt.

But I was very busy, in those years, with the work of the Central Hindu College of Benares; which had been founded in 1898, by Mrs. Annie Besant and Indian colleagues, to form a centre for the rationalisation, liberalisation, and solidarisation of what is now called 'Hinduism'.

This 'Hinduism' is obviously something very degenerate now. Formerly it was Vaidika Dharma, 'the Religion of Knowledge, of Spiritual and Material Science', 'Scientific Religion'; Arya Dharma, 'the Noble Religion', 'the Religion of the Philanthropic and Noble-minded'; Sanatana Dharma, 'the Eternal Religion', 'the Religion of the Eternal Spirit, the Supreme Universal Self'; Bauddha Dharma, 'the Religion of Buddhi, Rational Intelligence', 'Rational Religion'; Manava Dharma, 'the Religion of Man, the child of Manu the Thinker', 'the Human and Humane and 'Humanist Religion'. It was a spirituo-material, psycho-physic, scientific, far-sighted, comprehensive Code of Individuo-Social and Socio-Individual Life; a scheme of a fourfold Educational-Political-Economic-Industrial Organisation of the whole Human Race, calculated to secure, for that Race, the maximum happiness possible, individual and social, this-worldly and other-worldly, here and hereafter. But for some centuries now it has been, and is today, an unsightly heap of conflicting superstitions, a dazing turmoil of hundreds of struggling sects, mostly senseless, some foul also (as, indeed, unhappily, are the other great living religions too, though in a lesser degree); its followers, an amazing jumble, a jostling welter, of between two and three thousand mutually 'touch-me-not', mutually exclusive, mutually abusive, petty castes, sub-castes, and yet further sub-divisions, to the fifth or sixth degree, all utterly disorganised.

The honorary secretary-ship of the Board of Trustees and the Managing Committee of the institution was placed upon my shoulders. We were all working hard, Mrs. Besant hardest of all, to build up the college and make it a fit instrument for realising our ideal, viz., gradually restoring the old 'order' in place of this disorder, of re-organising the disorganised.

The hundreds of branches of the Theosophical Society, dotted all over India, in the large and small towns, became committees for collecting funds. This was one main cause of such success as was achieved. Part of my duties was to go round, in the winters, with the President of the College, Mrs. Besant, on the tours she made to enlist sympathy and secure financial aid.

In such conditions, I was not master of my time. I could not arrange to study the original Aphorisms and Commentary systematically, day after day, with a Pandit acquainted with the 'traditional' meanings.

Also, the subject has fallen into neglect among the Pandit-scholars of Benares, because of lack of the requisite earnest inclination for such a difficult thing as 'Yoga'; which, moreover, is a matter, not only of theoretical discussion and intellectual argumentation, but of heart-discipline, mind-control, persistent introspection, and 'practical exercises' of other kinds as well. And, even as regards the theoretical part, the Bhashya of Vyasa, in particular, has been largely avoided by the Pandits, for centuries perhaps, because of its often peculiar syntax and strange and obscure diction. I am told by a friend who has specialised in Buddhist literature, that it has points in common, with the earlier Buddhist works in Samskrit. This is not surprising when we remember that Buddha studied Sankhya and Yoga with Alara Kalama and Rudraka Rama-putra, in the course of his strenuous search for Truth. Buddhist writings have practically not been touched for six or seven centuries now by the orthodox Pandits. It is no wonder then that they should find the style of the Bhashya not easy to follow; Samskrit style having taken a rather different direction after the disappearance of Buddhism from India, some time about the 12th century A.C.

A reliable teacher of even the theory, very much more the practice, was not easily available therefore, in the town of Benares; and I had neither the needed reckless courage of passionate seeking, nor the opportunity, to wander forth asearch in the jungles and the mountains for such a true teacher; though the air of even present-day India is full of rumours that such 'mystic persons' are to be found, not only in the distant and less accessible places, but even in the busy haunts of men, now and then, in disguises not easy to penetrate for the half-hearted seeker!

But though, unfortunately, I was not much more than half-hearted, nor gifted with any special mental capacity, yet my interest in the deep ultimate problems of philosophy and psychology was and is constitutional, unabateable, ever since I can remember. Life, without a 'philosophy of life', individual and social, has always appeared to me unsatisfying, ever since I have been able to think, at first semi-consciously, then more and more clearly, with the passing of the years. Right administration of human affairs, individual or social, planning out of the single life, organisation of the collective life, is impossible without right knowledge of the fundamentals of human nature, and of the origin, nature, meaning, purpose, and end of life. Sound practice is not possible without sound theory. So my studies in the whole subject, and my craving to know something of the theory, and if possible, a touch of the practice also, of the Yoga-system, as important part of the whole subject, persisted side by side with the need to attend to the executive work entrusted to me.

I decided to be content with an endeavour to learn, by myself, something of the Yoga-theory, from the recognised current main text-book, however obscure; and to do this by reading it over and over again, (it is a small book), in the intervals between the spells of other unavoidable work. I soon found that the technical terms, the peculiar Samskrit, the use of common words in uncommon ways and senses, created extra-ordinary difficulties in addition to those inherent in the subject. But it is well known that to see or hear an even wholly unknown word, written or spoken by others, in a number of varying contexts and situations, lightens up its meaning and makes it even familiar. That, indeed, is how we all learn our mother-tongues. I resolved to make a Concordance. This kind of work did not require continuous uninterrupted day by day application.

In the course of three to four years, by the end of 1907 or 1908 (—my memory is not clear now—), the manuscript was completed. It was full of defects. Bye and bye, I made a fair copy.

Then the work was put aside. Other work occupied me. Twenty years and more passed. The Central Hindu College had grown into the Benares Hindu University, (which was formally founded on 4th February, 1916, when the Great War was at its height), and had long passed into other management. Astonishing speed had been put on by human history all over the world. Its march had become an overwhelming rush. Extraordinary, undreamt of, events had actually occurred on gigantic scales. The World-War had been fought; empires had toppled over and been replaced by republics; an epidemic had killed more human beings in four months of 1918-1919 in India, than the Great War had in four years in Europe; leviathan Communism and titan Fascism-Nazism were glaring at each other and preparing to grapple in a greater World-War; diplomatic imperialistic Democratism was sitting on the fence, trying to play off the two against each other, primarily for its own self-defence, but always keeping one eye 'on the main chance' also. India too had been struggling more strenuously for politico-economic emancipation from subjection. The Civil Disobedience Movement was raging throughout the country in 1930 and again in 1932. My elder son had gone to prison for the second time, in the latter year, together with other members of the Kashi Vidya Pitha. This wholly non-official educational institution, of which I was President, then, (and which is now publishing this work), had been closed by, and was, then, in the custody of, the Police.

But the small private lives of individuals had to be lived and were being lived; small personal interests had to be looked after and were being looked after, when not directly made impossible to attend to; even while enormous events were shaking the human world like vast earthquakes; though to Mother-Nature, the destruction of some millions of human beings, or of a whole continent, or a whole planet or solar system, must be the same as the destruction of an ant-hill. India was fortunate, in this that here the violence was confined to the side of the Government only; and that too was perforce reduced to a minimum, because of the non-violence of the people. But on the other hand, there was a violent outbreak of engineered communal riots, accompanied with much murder, bloodshed, and destruction of property, in many towns, including Benares, especially in 1931.

To keep my mind occupied in some mind-resting work in the intervals between distractions and alarms of various kinds, I began, in 1932, to take the long-sleeping Concordance through the press.

It was not merely a Concordance. It was a lexicon also. I had endeavoured to explain each complete word, simple or compound, in English; very doubtful though I frequently was, of the accuracy of my explanations.

But, for various reasons, the work was interrupted after only 56 pages had been printed. I could not take it up again until this year, 1938; though the Civil Disobedience Movement was suspended by its leaders in 1934, and it was decided that the Indian National Congress should send members into the Legislature under the changing Constitution. I had to attend to some other more urgent literary work. I had also been forced into the Central Legislative Assembly of India by kind friends, from the beginning of 1935. Hence the interruption. I have been allowed by them to resign only now, barely in time. I am very near the completion of my seventieth year, ailments increasing, all mental and physical powers decreasing. Study of Vedanta and Yoga is specially appropriate for the last years of life; though, if the principles thereof were studied early in life, particularly by statesmen and rulers, and applied by them to the administration of affairs, as in ancient India (—as I have endeavoured to explain in my other books, most recently in The Science of the Self, or the Principles of Vedānta-Yoga), they would be found exceedingly useful for all, would appease and allay the raging passions of nations, point out the way of rational social organisation, minimise jealousies, hatreds, competitions, maximise co-operation, between all peoples, and save them from the horrors of war, and the scarcely lesser horrors of perpetual preparation for war, and hairbreadth escapes from outbreak of universal war, such as the world has experienced on the 30th September, 1938—an escape secured, for the moment, by the disruption of Czecho-slovakia.

I have now managed to take the rest of the work through the Press, in the belief that it may perhaps be of some use to cognate souls feeling difficulties similar to mine. Naturally, I have been in somewhat of a hurry to 'wind up affairs', at this time of my life, and have not been able to give it as thorough a revision as I should have liked to. The work therefore remains full of all sorts of defects, omissions, wrong figures of reference, superfluous entries, erroneous interpretations. One merit only it can claim—that of a Concordance. The student of Yoga-Darshana has now, what was not available so far, the means (1) to readily find out all the places in which any word, whose uses he wishes to trace, has been used, (2) to compare the several uses, and (3) to decide the meaning for himself.

I should acknowledge the help received. Shri Harl Govinda Borvankar, then a student of the Kashi Vidya Pitha (founded by Shri Shiva Prasad Gupta), prepared another fair copy for the press, from the one made by me. I have made many revisionary changes in the English explanations in this last copy, and more in the proofs. Shri Mukundi Lal (to some extent), and again Shri Gopal Shastri (to a greater), both then belonging to the staff of the Kashi Vidya Pitha, tested this copy and detected some mistakes and omissions, in the entries and reference numberings, here and there, before I began revision. Maha-mahopadhyaya Pandit Gopinath Kaviraj, M. A., retired Principal of the Government Sanskrit College of Benares, kindly consented to look through one proof and suggest modifications of the English explanations where they seemed desirable. It would have converted my diffidence into confidence, in offering the work to the student-public, if this arrangement could have been carried out. Unfortunately for the book, he was not able to scrutinise the proofs of more than one or two eight-page forms. He had to leave Benares repeatedly on distant journeys; and I could not keep the work pending. A promising young student of the Kashi Vidya Pitha, Shri Kumara-pala (alias Kanwar Lal) B.A., has helped me in

(1) of the fact that nothing 'unfamiliar', 'ab-normal', 'super-physical', is or can be more wonderful than our familiar psycho-physical experiences of every day; and (2) of the maxim or axiom, that the Law of Analogy reigns supreme throughout Nature, that "as the small, so the large", "as the microcosm, the Kshudra-virat, so the macrocosm, the Maha-virat". Reasons for such views I have expounded in my other writings, mainly The Science of Peace.

That the subject of Yoga, (Suluk, in the language of Sufism; see my book on The Essential Unity of All Religions), in its different aspects, is beginning to 'occupy' even the 'professorial' or 'officially scientific' mind, as something serious and worth investigation, and not as merely 'juggling' and 'sleight-of-hand', (though, unhappily, most of its 'professional' exponents in India are undoubtedly frauds), is shown by works like Miss Coster's above-mentioned, and by passages like the following which occurs in Dr. Joad's Guide to Modern Thought (pub. 1933), ch. vii, 'Abnormal Psychic Phenomena': "To one and another, here and there, access may be permitted to the full hidden powers of his own being. Some may even have found a way of access for themselves, and by discipline and meditation, have learned to tap the sealed store of their innate vital endowment. It is in this direction that we may look for an explanation of the powers of the yogi and the mystic; and the humbler faculties of the crystal-gazer and the clairvoyant may be traced to the same source. Most reported cases of telepathic communication occur in times of great mental stress"; pp. 189-190.

Yoga may, not inappropriately, be defined as the Science and Art of intense Attention, mental stressing, of 'inhibiting', all distractions, and 'exhibiting' the mind, turning it towards, some one object, so exclusively [that that object is necessarily reflected, imaged, in the mind, as a thing is in a mirror, or an object on the retina, when there is no veil between, and no disturbance or clouding or ruffling of the surface of the mirror or the retina. Yoga, (Skt. yuj, Lat. jugare, to 'join', to 'yoke', the mind to an object). is thus the essential of all educational work, simplest to most complex—'Attend!', 'Concentrate!'. Animal, 'freezing' to escape detection by hunting predacean, or crouching motionless to intensely watch prey before pouncing upon it; burglar, financier, diplomat, commander, planning a coup, or detective tracing a crime, sign by sign, in mind; child mastering its a, b, c; artist absorbed in painting or sculpting from morn till eve; scientific genius forgetting food and drink while intent on making great discovery; philosopher lost in thought for days and nights, determined to solve a problem; Rshi or Nahi or 'Son of God' seeing with opened 'inner eye' the happenings of distant past, present, future, even as the owner of a good radiophone can catch music or speech broadcast from any quarter of the globe, by 'tuning' the instrument properly:—all these are performing 'yoga'; only the objects, the purposes, the degrees of developement of intelligences and content of consciousness differ.

It has been well observed by E. Kapp, quoted by Maeterlinck in his Life of the White Ant, (p. 183), that "all our machines are merely organic projections, i. e. unconscious imitations of models supplied by nature", in the organs of living animals, which serve the same purposes for the animals as the machines for man. Yoga-discipline, Yoga-training, Yoga-education, is intended to develop the powers latent, hidden, in seed, in man. If he succeeds in unfolding and exfoliating them, he may become largely independent of machines, may become Self-dependent and put aside sordid diplomacies and brutal wars, and achieve Spiritual Fraternity and Equality, Social and Economic Equifability, Political Liberty.

Some friends ask, "Why have you tried to explain the Samskrit words in English, rather than Hindi, far more widely known in India, and your own mother-tongue?" I have partly answered such 'censure' of my dear and patriotic Indian friends, at the close of the preface to my book on The Science of the Emotions (3rd. edn.). I may add a few words here.

When I first began literary work, over forty years ago, I felt sub-consciously, and since then have realised more and more clearly, that the Indian People have largely forgotten the true, liberal, far-reaching, and most helpful meanings of the most significant and most valuable words and phrases of Samskrit, and have put in narrow and misleading ones instead; and that these true meanings can be restored, sometimes directly, often indirectly, by study of modern western thought, through some one of the three or four most highly developed European languages, of which English is the nearest and most easily and fully available to Indians at present. The hereditary treasure-house of gems and jewels of spiritual and psychical science is ours; and the eyes are ours. But the eyes are blinded by the thick darkness of petty selfishness, narrow-mindedness, and dissipated separatism; the gems and jewels are covered deep with dust and dirt, and the storehouse is filled with cobwebs, all created by what the Yoga-Sutras describe as the "five-jointed, evil-bearing, sorrow-laden, misery-bringing, 'original sin' of Primal Error and Untruth, Egoism, Lust, Hate, and Infatuate Clinging to the things of sense". To clear away the thick deposit of dust, dirt, and cobwebs, the strokes of the strong-sweeping brooms of western critical habit are needed; and to light up the darkness, the lamps and lanterns of modern extensive and intensive science, and of research in, and record of, History in the broadest sense (of the Purana-Itihasa), cosmogenic, biological, anthropological, sociological, economical, political, religious, is necessary. But we must not forget that these are only means; the eyes that will ultimately see, are and must be our own; and the gems and jewels of apiritual and psychological science are and will continue to be those left by the ancient seers and sages of Bharata-varsha; and left for the use of not only the Indian People, but of all mankind; for they were not motivated by any narrow nationalism but by Humanism; to them, all the branches of the Aryan Root-stock were equally their own descendants.

Perhaps that is why the Ultimate Mystery, which those Sages and Seers beheld with the 'vision-ary' inner 'third' eye of true Vision; which, in their records of Vedanta they have called Brahma and Param-Atma, "the infinite and Supreme Self"; and in the teachings of Yoga have named the Kevala Drashta and Chiti-Shaktih, "the One Seer of all, the Omni-scient, Omni-potent, Omnipresent Storeholder of all experiences, past, present, and future, the Principle of Universal Life and Consciousness";—that is why that Mystery has sent the western peoples, latest and most vigorous offshoots of the ancient Indo-Aryan Root-Race, back to the east generally and to India specially; so that both the eastern and the western latest descendants of that Root-Race may ultimately benefit by the contact and 're-union', after long partition and separation; however rough, unpleasant, painful in the beginning, however full of trials and tribulations, that re-union may have been. The vast amount of admirable industry and research that has been bestowed upon the Sanskrit language and literature by the scholars of Britain, France, Germany, U. S. A., Russia; the permeation of cultured western thought by some of the deepest spirituo-psychical ideas and beliefs of the east; and the rapid corresponding absorption of western physical science and of the ways of living of the west by the intelligentsia of the east; these are proofs of the inherent affinity and attraction between the 'cousins' descended from the same Root-'ancestors'. Some persons talk of the difference between east and west. But it is even patent that each and every country is both east and west. America is east to Asia; Asia is east to Europe and Africa; Europe and Africa are east to America; Asia is west to America; Europe and Africa are west to Asia; America is west to Europe and Africa. The One Sun illuminates them all, turn by turn. The only difference, if any, is that of earlier and later, before and after, old and young. All lovers and well-wishers of Humanity cannot but wish and pray that there may be ever less and less antagonism and ever more and more sincere fraternisation between east and west.

I pray that this Concordance may be of greater service to those who consult it for help in understanding the ancient doctrines of Yoga, than the labor of compiling it has been to me, and I sincerely offer all good wishes to them.

पतंजलि के बनाये योगसूत्र और व्यास नाम के विद्वान् के लिखे भाष्य के सब शब्दों की, पर्यामाला के क्रम से इस अनुक्रमणी और उन शब्दों की अंग्रेजी में व्याख्या का, क्यों, कथ, किस प्रकार से संकलन किया गया, इस की कथा अंग्रेजी में लिखे 'निवेदन' में कही है। थोड़े में यह कि, इसमें, सूत्र और भाष्य का प्रत्येक शब्द जिस जिस स्थान में आया है, उसका अंकन यहाँ कर दिया है; विविध सन्धियों में अज्ञात शब्द का प्रयोग सुनने देखने से उसका अर्थ ज्ञात हो जाता है; सब मनुष्य अपनी अपनी मातृभाषा इसी प्रकार से सीखते हैं; योग के कठिन अप्रसिद्ध संतप्तितार्थ शब्दों के अर्थों का निर्णय इसी प्रकार से हो सकता है।

अपने हिन्दी-प्रेमी 'हिन्दू-वासी' 'हिन्दी' भाइयों के लिये उसके कुछ अंश का रूपांतर हिन्दी शब्दों में लिखता हूँ; विशेष कर इस हेतु से कि ऐसे कई प्रिय मित्रों ने मुझ से पर्यनु-योग (अभियोग, शिकायत) किया है कि तू अंग्रेजी में क्यों लिखता है, हिन्दी में क्यों नहीं।

उत्तर थोड़े में यह है, कि भारत जनता को, अपने पूर्वजों के दोष से, और अपने पूर्व जन्म की भूलों से, 'चौदह वर्ष बनवास' के विविध दुःखों को भोग कर के ही, नये अनु-भवों को प्राप्त कर के ही, प्राचीन ज्ञान का जीर्णोद्धार और प्र-णवी-करण साध कर के ही, 'राम-राज्य' प्राप्त हो सकेगा—ऐसी 'वासना यामुदेवस्य' जान पड़ती है। उसी 'वासना' ने पाश्चात्यों को पूर्व देशों में, विशेष रूप से भारत में, भेजा होगा; और इसी छुमेच्छा अनु-ग्रहेच्छा से, कि परस्पर गुण-ग्रहण, परस्पर दोष-मार्जन करें। दुर्भाग्यवश, अविद्यावश, दोनों के डकड़ दोषों के कारण, अब तक ऐसा कम हुआ, परस्पर दोष-ग्रहण बहुत हुआ। पर सर्वथा दोष-ग्रहण हो नहीं हुआ, गुण-ग्रहण भी कुछ हुआ। पाश्चात्य जातिवां भी, अंग्रेज, फ्रांसीसी, जर्मन, रूसी, अमेरिकन, सब मूल आर्य जाति की ही शाखा प्रशाखा हैं; उनके विद्वानों को, आर्य जाति की मूल भाषा संस्कृत और उसके लौकिक वैदिक साहित्य की ओर, भारी आकर्षण स्वभावतः हुआ, "व्यतिपन्नति पदार्थानान्तरः कोऽपि हेतुः"; और जैसा परिश्रम उस पर, और उसके जीर्णोद्धार पर, और कुछ ग्रन्थों के छपाने पर, उन्होंने किया, वैसा भारत में, सायण-भाष्य के पीछे, चार सौ वर्ष से, नहीं हुआ, और अब उनके अनुकरण से ही होने लगा है। तथा, उपनिषदों के, गीता के, आध्यात्मिक भाव, पश्चिम के शिक्षितों में फैले; और पुनर्जन्म, कर्म, इत्यादि के विचार यहाँ बहुतों ने अपना लिया। एवं, भारत में, पाश्चात्य आधिभौतिक विज्ञान अपनाया गया है, अन्ध-श्रद्धा कम हुई है, नई नई गवेषणा करने की, परीक्षा करके विश्वास करने की, "पुराणमित्येव न साधु सर्वं" की, बुद्धि बढ़ी है। दार्शनिक ग्रंथों के, तथा इतिहास-पुराण, सृष्टि, आदि ग्रंथों के, एवं वेदों के भी, प्रचलित अर्थों की इसी परीक्षा-बुद्धि से बड़ी जांच करने की आवश्यकता है; और पाश्चात्य वैज्ञानिक बल से, ऐसी जांच में सहायता देने वाली सामग्री भी बहुत एकत्र हो गई है, जो सायण-भाष्यादि के समय में उपलब्ध नहीं थी। उनके शब्दों के मार्मिक, गूढ़, अर्थों का पता, बिना ऐसी जांच किये, नहीं चल सकता। पुराणों में, वेदों में, अर्थवाद और रूपक भरे पड़े हैं; उनके शब्दों का अब अक्षरार्थ ही कर लिया जाता है, और प्रभू अथवा शंका करने पर

'नास्तिकता' का निःशंक अध्यास किया जाता है। इनका तार्किक अर्थ समझने के लिये हथर उधर पुराणों में, वेदों में, निरुक्त में, ही, संकेत रख दिये हैं; पर उनकी ओर ध्यान नहीं दिया जाता; बिना बहुश्रुतता के इन संकेतों का पता नहीं लगता, और अर्थ का अनर्थ ही किया जा रहा है। 'विभेदव्यत्ययश्रुताद् वेदोभामयं प्रतरिष्यति'। वेद की, पुराण की, वचना प्रतारणा हो रही है। यह 'बहुश्रुतता', विविध ज्ञान विज्ञान के शास्त्रों की जानकारी, इस काल में, भारतीय को, बिना पाश्चात्य अंग्रेजी, फ्रांसीसी, या जर्मन भाषा के ज्ञान के नहीं हो सकती।

निष्कर्ष यह, कि आँखें हमारी ही हैं, पूर्वजों के संचित परम्परागत रस भी हमारे ही हैं; पर आँखों पर, क्षुद्रस्वार्थपरायणता, शक्तिभाव, परस्पर भेदभाव का अंधकार छाया हुआ है; रत्नकोय रजस् तमस्वी धूलि के नीचे दया, महाच्छन्न, अदृश्य हो रहा है; रत्नागार में 'अविद्या-अस्मिता-राग-द्वेष-अभिनिवेश' की मकदियों के झाले भर रहे हैं। बिना पश्चिम से मार्जनी और दीपक मंगनी लिये, और उनसे अभी कई दशाब्दियों तक काम लिये, यहाँ का भेदभाव, ईर्ष्या, मत्सर, अहंकार का अंधकार, और यह क्षुद्रस्वार्थपराता दुःशीलता रूपिणी सत्ता का सर्वाच्छादक सन्तु, दूर नहीं होता देख पड़ता। पर, इसके दूर होने पर, अपनी ही आँखों से देखना होगा, अपने ही रस पहिचानने होंगे।

अंतःप्रेरणया, ऐसे भावों से, पहिले अनुहुद अस्पष्ट अव्यक्त, 'प्रसुप्त-तनु-विच्छिन्न' रूप से, और पीछे अधिकाधिक बुद्धिपूर्वक व्यक्त रूप से, भावित होकर, चालीस वर्ष से, संस्कृत भावों का, अंग्रेज़ भाषा के द्वारा; जीर्णोद्धार करने का, अपनी अति क्षुद्र शक्ति और अत्यल्प बुद्धि के अनुसार, प्राचीन महाकाव्यिक महाव्यसल मन्वादि महापियों का हृदय से आवाहन पुनर्गुण करता हुआ, चल कर रहा है। वेद सदा यह बना रहता है कि अपना ऐसा पुण्य नहीं, भाग्य नहीं, सपस् नहीं, शौच नहीं, हृदय में शुद्धि और बल नहीं, लोक लोक स्वाध्याय भी नहीं, कि साक्षात् 'सिद्ध-दशने' प्राप्त हो जाता, और अधिक निश्चय के साथ इस कार्य को कर सकता। योग शास्त्र के विषय पर कुछ लिखना तो नितरम् छटता ही है; मेरे ऐसे जीव के लिये, जो उसके किसी भी रहस्यांत को प्रायश्च नहीं कर पाया है। प्रस्तुत प्रयत्न के लिये अपना आध्यासन इतने से ही कर लेता हूँ कि, स्वयं भाष्यकार ने, लिखा है, "योगः समाधिः, स च सार्वभौमः विपश्च धर्मः"; क, ख, सीतते हुए चबे भी 'मनो-योग' करते हैं, और उनके शिक्षक उनसे समय समय पर कहते हैं कि 'ध्यान दो', 'मनो-योग' करो; इसी भाव से मैंने योग शास्त्र की ऊपरी बातों के आरम्भिक 'क', 'ख' को आप सीखने का प्रयत्न किया है; छापने का विचार इस लिये किया कि स्वात् मेरी देशी दशा में पढ़े हुए अन्य किन्हीं सज्जनों की इससे कुछ सेवा हो जाय।

संस्कृत भाषा सभी भाषा भाषाओं की मापतामही है। पर अति वृद्ध हो जाने के कारण निष्पाण सी हो रही है। उसकी सन्तति रूप भाषाओं में अभी यह सब 'संस्कार', 'परिष्कार', एक एक शब्द में अर्धपूर्णता, आध्यात्मिकता, नहीं सम्पन्न हुई है जो 'संस्कृत' में है; किन्तु नये शरीर में प्राण अधिक है। पृथ्वी प्रवितामही की अभी बहुत शताब्दियों तक आर्य कुटुम्ब की आदि-जननी के रूप से, मूर्तिमान् आशीर्वाद और पातसत्य के रूप से, सादर, संस्नेह, उच्च स्थान पर बिठाये रहना और उससे उपदेश लेते रहना आवश्यक है; किन्तु नई युवियों में, जिनका प्राण धर्ममान है, सर्वांगीण शौचका सम्पादन, और उनका अहंकरण संकरण

अधिकाधिक करते रहना भी आवश्यक है। 'अंग्रेजी' से 'हिन्दी' को इस कार्य में सहायता मिल सकती है, मिली है, और कुछ काल तक मिळती रहेगी; उस सहायता को लेने से मुंह फेरना, यही भूल होगी। मेरा निजी अनुभव है कि मुझ को कितने ही दर्शन, स्मृति, पुराण के प्राचीन संस्कृत शब्दों और वाक्यों के उन उदार भाषों के पहिचानने में, जिनके स्थान पर अब अति संकुचित संकीर्ण अर्थ ही प्रसिद्ध हो रहे हैं, अंग्रेजी दर्शन, अंतःकरण शास्त्र, राज शास्त्र, समाज शास्त्र, इतिहास, विज्ञान आदि के ग्रन्थों से बहुत सहायता मिली, और यह भान हुआ कि, यद्यपि आधिभौतिक विज्ञान में हमारे पाश्चात्य भ्रातृव्य बहुत आगे बढ़ गये हैं, परंतु उनसे अधिक आध्यात्मिक और समाजजीवनशास्त्र संबंधी प्रज्ञान हमारी परम्परागत मंजूषाओं में पड़ा है, यदि हमसे यह खोलते यमें। उनकी कुंजी यनाने में हमको पच्छिम के विज्ञान से, और स्वात् उसी से, अन्यथा नहीं, सहायता मिल सकती है। तथा उनको भी, हमारी पुरानी मंजूषाओं में से निकले प्रज्ञान से, प्रवर्धमान और प्रवर्धमान घोर राग-द्वेष के महा तमस् के महा भय से छूटने में सहायता मिल सकती है। स्वात् इसी लिये 'वासना वासु-देवस्य' ने पूर्व और पश्चिम का भारत में 'योग' किया है।

Of the Rules followed in Printing.

1. The words of the Aphorisms are printed in larger type.
2. Words, which are parts of compound words, are printed with dashes, before, or after, or on both sides, of them, according to their position in the compound. They are not explained in English, except rarely; the explanation will be found under the complete compound word, which may be traced by the figures of reference given.
3. The figures are for the chapter and the aphorism, or corresponding commentary.
4. Sometimes a word occurs repeatedly in the commentary on an aphorism; it is given only once in the Concordance.
5. Simple words of very frequent occurrence, like pronouns, conjunctions, indeclinables, which have no technical meaning, are not indexed completely; only one reference, for each of the four chapters of the work, is given.
6. English equivalents are usually not given for the declensional variants of the principal word, when its nominative singular has been explained.
7. Inverted single commas are used now and then to draw attention to the literal significance or the etymological identity; thus योग, yoga, Skt. yuj, Lat. iugare, to 'yoke' to 'join'; or आयु, snayu 'sinew'. Important words are begun with capitals.

ADDENDA ET CORRIGENDA

28. After "अविध्यत्", add "अविनाशिनम्, iii. 13 Of the unperishing."
87. To explanation of "अगोयः", add "engagement; occupation."
39. Below "—आलोचितः", insert "आवद्यः, आवद्यम् iii, 18".
39. After "—आशयः iv. 6", add "(आ + शी, to sleep). 'Sleeping' instinct; 'dormant' propensity; tendency; disposition; inclination; proclivity; bent; thought-root; wish-seed; embryonic idea; rudimentary desire; that which is meant (as in the English expression 'What do you mean?', i. e., 'What is your real purpose?'). (See IV. 9, Bhashya संस्काराः पासनाः आशयाः इत्यर्थः; and the separate words in this Concordance).
49. After "उपावर्त्तते", add "turns away; is finished; is satisfied."
56. After "कर्म", add "desert, deservingness of reward or punishment earned by good or bad deeds respectively; also, in grammar, the object of an action, the accusative."
59. After "कश्चित् iii. 43," add "—कश्चित्तानाम् ii. 4. (Some editions read विद्वत्तानाम्, which seems erroneous).
62. After "कालः", for "iii 52", read "iii. 26, 52".
68. After "क्षिप्तः", add "leading to pain; pregnant with misery; big with sorrow and suffering; hence 'sinful', 'erring from the right path.'
74. To the explanations of "गुणाः", add "(See कदाति, प्रकाश, प्रख्या, प्रवृत्ति, क्रिया, स्थिति || गुणयति, आमंत्रयति, आह्वयति, आहृष्यति, प्रलोभयति, बहुलीकुर्वन्ति, पंचक्षेत्राभिराभिः पासनाभिः जीवं चेतयति, पद्मन्ति, इति गुणाः । Because they tempt and invite with their attractive qualities, over and over again, and create variety and multiplicity in place of unity and simplicity, and twine round the soul, the ego, and bind it in the chains of the five-fold, sin-bearing, misery-causing, desires, appetites, instincts, therefore are they called 'guṇa-s'. The verb-root गुप्, in Skt., has this threefold meaning, to tempt and invite, to repeat and multiply, and to twine round and enwrap).
79. To the explanation of "घोरम्", add "(This quality is connected with rajas).
79. After "चतुर्विधकल्पितानाम्", add "(Some editions read चतुर्विधविकल्पानाम्, which is not satisfactory).

80. After "चित्तिः", add "awareness ; pure sentience ; pure perception ; apperception".
82. After "चित्तस्य", add, (Some editions omit this word in iv. 10).
96. After "—तु—", for "iii. 39", read "iii. 26, 39".
107. After "देतलक्षणभेदः", for "charactering works" read "characterising marks."
109. After "द्विपेयु", "for continents" read "continents."
111. After "धर्ममेवः", add (धर्मान् मेवैति).
118. After "निमज्जति", for "iii.54" read "iii.45",
 " . Below "निमज्जति", insert "—निमज्जणे iii.51".
123. After "—निर्भासः", add "iii. 17".
123. After "निर्विचारा", add "(सविचारा seems to mean meditation about an abstract concept, but in connection with some concrete embodiment, as, e.g., looking at a particular triangle drawn on paper, we may think about the properties of all triangles generally, i.e. of the abstract triangle. If so, then निर्विचारा may mean meditation about an abstract concept, without reference to any particular concrete embodiment of it, and covering all possible concrete forms of it, past, present, future. See also वितर्क...रूपानुगमात्)."
124. After "निर्विचारा", add "(See also वितर्क...रूपानुगमात्)."
126. Above "पण्डिताः", insert "पण्डकः ii 24 (See पण्डकः)"; and "पण्डकोपाख्यानेन). ii. 24 (See पण्डकोपाख्यानेन)."
- 147-148. Strike out the explanation given of "प्रत्यवविधेकनिश्चयः", and read instead, "of (the mind) inclining towards discrimination, of (itself as the locus of) cognitions or ideas, (from the apperceiving self; and no longer indiscriminately and deeply interested in worldly things)."
156. After "भातिभम्", add "(प्रति-भा, to shine out, to appear in a flash)."
175. After "मूढः", add "(This quality is connected with tamas)."
196. Col. 1, l. 20, for "p. 68", read "p. 35, 68."
198. For "—विनाशि", read "विनाशि."
236. After "सदृशणभेदात्", "for ii. 53" read "iii. 53."

The mis-take, of taking the part for the whole, the perishing and impure body for the Eternal and Pure Self, is the prime cause, the root, the seed, of all the miseries, kleshas, of the world; therefore, it is, by a figure of speech, as it were, itself called the first and greatest 'misery', 'affliction', klesha. The uses of the English word 'miserable',—Latin, miserari, to have mercy, to pity,—which means "exceedingly unhappy, also worthless, despicable, wretched", and of the word 'wretched',—"Anglo-Saxon wrecca, an outcast, one driven away"—cf. Skt. vrāṭya—which also means "a most miserable person, one sunk in vice, distressingly bad, despicable";—these uses are similar to those of klesha. In Sanskrit, kṛpā means pity, kṛpāṇa is pitiable, 'pitiful', compassionate, feeling pity, also exciting pity, also despicable, miserably, avaricious).

गुणाः ii. 15, 18, 19, 27; iii. 44, 47, 49, 55; iv. 14 Attributes; primal attributes; qualities; properties; 'strands', (गुण्, to multiply; गुणः, a string, cord, rope, twisted of 'multiple' threads, strands. This is one of the most important words in the whole of Samskr̥t Philosophy. The three guṇas, primal attributes, strands, of which Prakṛti, Nature, the Nature of the Supreme Principle of Consciousness, Puruṣa or Paramātmā or Brahma (n), is made up, viz., Sat̥tva, Rajas, Tamas, simply pervade the whole of Samskr̥t thought and literature. A correct understanding of their significance is indispensable to see clearly what otherwise remains obscure and confused. A long Note at the end of ch. xi of Bhagavan Das' The Science of Peace, endeavours to ascertain that significance precisely, by comparing scores of passages, from different works, in which the three words occur. The conclusion arrived at is, briefly, that the three correspond to or signify, respectively, the principles of cognition (knowledge, en-'light'-enment), action (volition), and desire ('blindly' clinging tenacity), the three all-comprehensive functions of mind-body or life. The usual rendering, by the words luminosity, activity or passion, darkness or inertia, is unsatisfactory and catches only partial aspects.

गुणातीतत्वात् ii. 27 Because of transcendence of the guṇas; because of 'having gone beyond' the guṇas. (अति + इ, to go).

गुणात्मानः iv. 13 Of the nature of guṇas.

ग्राह्यग्रहणोभयाकारनिर्भासः i. 11 Showing forth the form of both the object of apprehension and of the act of apprehension. (Like the English word 'sensation', the word ग्राह्य covers the object which is sensed, the act or fact and also the organ of sensing, and the subjective feeling. That this is so, is due to the inseparability of all the three or four, though their natures are distinguishable.)

ब्राह्मप्रज्ञोभयारिमिकाम् i. 11 Of the nature of both apprehended and apprehendor.

ब्राह्मशक्तिस्तम्भे iii. 21 On suspension of 'the power of the apprehensible', i. e., the capacity of apprehensibility.

ब्राह्मसमापन्नम् i. 41 'Arrived at', 'gone to' (the state of), become, accomplished into, identified with, the object, the apprehensible.

ब्राह्मस्वरूपाकारेण i. 41 In or by the form which is the form of the apprehensible object.

ब्राह्मस्वरूपापन्ना i. 43 Attained to the form of the apprehensible.

धर्मलक्षणावस्थापरिणामाः iii. 13 Transformation of dharmas (i. e., the 'form'-attribute, the attribute of form, as e. g. of 'clay-ness' into 'jar-ness', i. e. of a lump of clay into a jar), and sequential changes of lakṣaṇas (i. e.) the three stages, special characteristics, viz., past 'unbornness', present 'createdness', future 'destroyedness', and developements of the successive avasthās, states or conditions, (as e.g., at first newness, then oldness; first freshness, then worn-out decay). (This looks very obscure jargon and 'logomachy' as translated, more or less literally. The significance is seen in the process of evolution and involution. Modern science with or despite its ever-changing and conflicting theories and speculations, has approached the fact that all potentialities are present in every atom, at least in every 'living atom' or biophore or zygote, these potencies have been named 'ids' or 'genes'. Ancient science only adds what modern science is also beginning to think to be very likely, that all atoms, super-atoms etc. are living. And it says that evolution consists in the gradual unfoldment of these potentialities. The technical expressions used by the Yoga Bhāṣya seem intended only to indicate the three implications of this faith, viz (1) that the unfoldment of any one potentiality implies the becoming latent of another that was before patent, (2) that this means that what was formerly hidden in the 'future' has now become the present, and the 'present' become the 'past' (3) that this again means that what was manifesting dynamically is weakening into staticity, while what was static is strengthening into dynamicity. This is suggested as a possible way of interpreting intelligibly, in modern terms, the language of the old passage which is undoubtedly very technical and obscure.)

 ध्यानम् ॥ 2 (ध्ये, ध्याय्, to dwell upon, to 'think' of, a thing). Intent observation, continuous attention, contemplation (By the dictionary and etymology, 'con templa tion' is marking out an area, a templum, for observation, and this fits in exactly with the technical definition of धारणा in the text. And, on the other hand, 'con centra tion,' 'confining to a centre, may be said similarly to fit in with the technical definition of ध्यानम् as continuous, unbroken, 'one pointed' or single-minded 'stretching' of an idea, a belief, a thought or conception or cognition. Yet, on the whole, considering all the associations and conventional uses of the two words, it seems best to render धारणा by concentration, and ध्यान by contemplation. Martial phraseology is analogous. Forces are 'concentrated' at a particular spot or point, as the chitta-mind is concentrated at some spot or point in the body or outside; and as a military operation, a march, an attack, is 'contemplated,' against, or on, a fort or other distant object, so the mind 'contemplates' one object with the intention, as it were, of throwing itself on or into it, to grasp and conquer the whole of it, to discover all its ins and outs, to seize hold of and identify itself with it, to make it not only 'mine', but that final degree of 'mine', viz, 'me', which constitutes समाधि, occupation or 'possession' of, rapport or identification with, the object, 'collected absorption' or 'absorbed collectedness' of the mind, rapture, raptness.

निर्वीजः i. 51 Seedless. (This word requires some consideration. Etymologically and by definition it means that final trance-extasis in which there is no seed, no germ, left of a world-process, no appetite for externalisation, or for anything other than Self-Puruṣha, no ālambana for the chitta. It is equivalent to Kaivalyam, al-one-ness, soleness. On the otherhand, when we ask, does this condition belong to the chitta, or is the chitta completely annihilated before or at the time this final extasis is achieved ?—then the Yoga system indicates that there is no final annihilation of any thing; that this condition of quiescence is a condition of the chitta and the corresponding condition of Puruṣha is that of 'Sol-itude', eternal and changeless; that 'seedless' here implies only that the three gunas have, by prati-pra-sava, 'in-volution', 'reversal of out-going-ness', been reduced to, have 'gone back to', the seed-condition, but the burnt-seed-condition, the saṃskāra or condition of sāmya, equilibrium, wherein there is no movement. Now, if this be so, the word nir-bīja 'seedless', is a misnomer. What is perhaps meant is that there is no bīja, seed, outside the individual subject, no leaning-crutch, ālambana, no peg to hang on, no leg to rest on, as object to it. This latter is the case in the other kind of samādhi, sa-bīja or samprajñāta, in which, in its perfection, the jīva-chiṭṭa is, as it were, identified with some one object, instead of all objects disappearing altogether and leaving the individual jīva-chiṭṭa or puruṣa (?) केवल, 'al-one'. But this explanation does not clear up the inconsistencies and self-contradictions involved at the bottom. Those ultimate cruxes can be satisfactorily explained and solved only with the help of the Vedānta).

प्रकृतिलयाः i. 19 'Lying in', dissolved, absorbed, merged in. Prakṛti, Matter, Nature. (Three kinds of Moksha are mentioned in the Yoga-sūtra and Bhāṣya—Viśēḥa, Prakṛtilaya and Kaivalya. The commentary of Vāchaspati, quoting from the Purāṇas, shows that the viśēḥas are a class of dēvas. One current notion of Moksha is that all distinctions of 'individuality' cease in that condition. Another is that they do not disappear altogether, but are more and more lost, in increasing degrees, in the feel of 'universality'; whence grades of Moksha. The three grades of Kaivalya, viveka-khyāti, dharma-megha, and kaivalya, with their summation in Svarūpa-pratīṣṭhā Chitīḥ; the three kinds of Moksha, Sūlokya, Sārūpya, Sāyujya, to which some add a fourth, Sāmīpya, after Sūlokya, and also a fifth, Sārṣhti, before Sāyujya; the three kinds of Mukti, mukti, vi-mukti, a-vi-mukti, and their summation -vide Pranava-Vāda; and various 'triplets' under each; also, 'sa-vitarka, nir-vitarka, sa-vichāra, nir-vichāra, asmitā-nugaṭā, ānandā-nugaṭā, ṛtambharā, maḍhu-bhūmikā, etc., of the Yoga; and sa-vikalpa, nir-vikalpa, etc. of the Vedānta; various forms of dhyāna mentioned by Yogī Yājñavalkya, etc; all such require to be synthesised).

iii. 36 Intuition, clair-audience, clair-tact, clair-voyance, clair-gustation and clair-olfaction.
(वार्त्ता here is explained by the Bhāṣhya as meaning experience of super-physical scents. But this is not at all the ordinary meaning of the word, which is 'means of existence'
living, livelihood, 'trade';
hence also, 'news'. The aphorism probably means 'news'
i. e., experiences, of intuition etc'; but the Bhāṣhya-kāra puts in 'olfaction' apparently for the sake of symmetrical completion of the 'five' sense-experiences).

रूपस्य ii. 28; iii. 21.

—रूपाः ii. 15; iv. 9, 13.

—रूपाः iii. 18.

रूपातिशयाः ii. 15; iii. 13 'Aspect-excesses': manifestations, pre-dominances, prevalences of 'forms'. (This and the word following it in the text, viz., 'वृत्त्यतिशयाः', are explained by Vāchaspati in a special manner. He says, the rūpas are eight: dharma, jñāna, vairāgya, aiśvarya, and their opposites.—see i. 2; and that the vṛttis are 'pleasure, etc.' i. e., pleasure, pain, perplexity, as the context shows. This is not very clear. Vāchaspati's own comment on Sūkhya-kārikā, 12, helps us to a simpler explanation; the rūpās, forms, or natures, and the vṛttis, activities, or functionings, of the three guṇas, when in excess, conflict with one another or each other; when not abnormally strong, but fairly balanced, (not exactly equilibrated either, for that means pralaya), they manage, each to have its proper turn. This explanation fits in better, it seems, with the context in ii. 15, and also in iii. 13; which Vāchaspati's rather far-fetched explanation of rūpas, and cursory one of vṛttis, does not seem to do so well and easily).

—रूपायाः ii. 20.

—वितर्क— i. 43; ii. 32, 33; iii. 26.

वितर्कः i. 17 (The Bhāṣhya explains this as) 'the gross, coarse, unrefined, occupation of the mind with a concrete, gross, non-subtle object'. But aphorism ii. 34 explains the plural form of the word as meaning 'impulse to kill, etc'. See वितर्काः).

वितर्कबाधने ii. 33 'On oppression by evil thoughts'; when evil passions disturb (the mind).

—वितर्कया i. 44.

वितर्कविकलः i. 17 Devoid of, free from, 'gross functioning'.

वितर्कविचारानन्दासितारूपानुगमात्

i. 17 Because of association with, or accompaniment by, (a) 'gross activity', i. e., (doubt-tinged, emotion-biased) perception, or thought, of some physical object; (b) more subtle (bias-free, purely rational) thought; (c) mere feeling of joy; (d) mere feeling of self. (These four progressively successive states and stages of samprajñāta or 'conscious' meditation or 'absorption' may be illustrated by an extract from a recent book, which happens to be at hand at the time of writing, on what has come to be known as 'psycho-analysis', also 'the new psychology'. The extract is in exact accord with the undisputed Sāṅkhya and Yoga doctrine, that saṭṭva-rajas-tamas, or jñāna-icchā-kriyā, are inseparable, though one prevails at a time; and some western exponents of the 'old psychology' also have noted the fact. "The working of each instinct involves three mental processes, the cognitive, the affective or emotional, and the conative.....A very large part of our actions and opinions are entirely determined by our complexes, and by far the largest parts are more or less colored by them, even when we are able to emancipate our judgments so far as to be able to act or judge to some extent independently of the bonds of our complexes. In purely rational thinking, which is a great deal rarer than most people imagine, the affective bond is of a different nature. The love of objective truth is here at least a part of the affect involved": Tansley, The New Psychology, p. 68. 'Complex' is a newly technicalised word, with a special significance, which includes what is clearly indicated by the words 'emotional bias', 'passionate prejudice', 'interested thought', etc. One of the main objects of yoga-discipline is to loosen and dissolve these 'complexes', kūma-jatāḥ, 'matted roots of desire', hṛdaya-granṭhayah, 'heart-knots'; and thereby to purify and maximise saṭṭva to the utmost, and free it from and minimise, first the lower and then also the finer, rajas and ṭamas, as much as possible, complete abolition being impossible. The first important exercise for this purpose is to learn to discriminate between a word, its meaning, i. e., the object meant, and the knowledge or consciousness of the word, on the one hand, and the object, on the other. By persistent practice of such discrimination, there arises the ability to discriminate, in the total mental mood or 'complex', what and how much is the element of the 'affective', 'emotional', 'passionate' bias or prejudice, and what and how much that of 'pure reason', i. e. 'cognitive', 'intellectual', judgment. (a) Sa-viṭarkā seems to be the meditation wherein this freedom from all such bias and passion, due to the coarser rajas and ṭamas, of hostility to any one and wish to hurt him, etc., has not been secured; e.g., the odium theologicum, and almost all political or commercial thinking i. e., 'meditation'. When such freedom is secured, the meditation becomes viṭarka-vikalā: or nir-viṭarkā. (i. 17, 43).

Apparently this nir-viṭarkā is the same as (b) sa-vichārā (i. 17 and 44), purely rational deep thinking, absorbed reflection, especially with reference to 'subtile' objects, ideas, opinions, or superphysical things. When even that disappears, we have vichāra-vikala (i. 17) or nir-vichārā; and this seems to be the meditative mood or state of mind in which there is no thinking, (i. 17) but only a voluminous feel of pleasant ease, positive joy, bliss, (c) ānanda-ānugatā, is left; as in the proximity of a loved person, or when resting in a comfortable bed after a hard day's work, to take a more common if less idealised experience (d) Asmitā-ānugatā is the rapt, absorbed, mood in which even that feel of joy has disappeared, ānanda-vikala (i. 17), and only the feel of self-existence, 'I-am-ness', remains, something like the consciousness just before falling asleep, but, in this case, alert and wakeful consciousness, without any sleepiness).

SOME OPINIONS ON THE WORKS OF DR. BHAGAVAN DAS.

THE SCIENCE OF THE EMOTIONS. (3rd edn., 1914; translations, of the earlier editions, of 1900 and 1908, have appeared in Dutch, French, Spanish, Norwegian; an epitome, of the 3rd enlarged edn, has been published by Miss K. Browning, M. A.). "Has for the first time introduced order into this confused region of consciousness"; Annie Besant; she has repeatedly referred to the work in her own books, and gave lectures on it in Britain, U. S. A., India, shortly after the first edition was published. "One of the most original and suggestive publications"; The Indian Review, Madras. "The correspondence and transmutation of the emotions, and the method of practical application... come as a revelation"; Ernest Wood. The late Shri P. T. Srinivasa Iyengar, then Principal of the Vizagapatam College, published a summary of it in a series of instalments, in the Theosophist. G. Coster refers to it in her book, Yoga and Western Psychology (pub: by the Oxford University Press; London, 1934), and includes it in "the selection of readable books" given at the end of it.

THE SCIENCE OF PEACE (1st edn., 1904; 2nd, 1921). "Metaphysical questions expounded with rare acumen and felicity"; Annie Besant "The gifted author of The Science of Peace"; Edward Carpenter in his book, The Drama of Love and Death. "The view that is here indicated seems to approximate rather closely to the views that have been more or less definitely suggested by some of the Oriental philosophers. See, for instance, The Science of Peace, by Bhagavan Das"; Professor J. S. Mackenzie, L.L.d., Litt. D., Co-editor of International Journal of Ethics, in the Theosophist for May, 1913.

THE SCIENCE OF SOCIAL ORGANISATION, OR THE LAWS OF MANU. (1st edn., 1910; 2nd, Vol I, 1932, Vol. II, 1935; Vol. III, in preparation). "A work of the highest excellence and value... Has the indefinable quality of distinction"; the late Professor E. A. Wodehouse, M. A., (Oxon). "A revelation of the scientific principles which underlie our old social organisation"; the late Maha-mahopadhyaya Pandit Aditya Ram Bhattacharya, M.A., Professor of Sanskrit, Muir College, Allahabad, later, Vice-Principal, Central Hindu College, Benares. "Simply grand"; the late Rai Bahadur Lala Baljnath, ex-Judge. "Amongst the most illuminative contributions to the study and understanding of the all-important subject it treats of"; Dr. Sir S. Subramania Iyer, ex-Chief Justice of the Madras High Court. "A rare combination of deep learning and felicitous phrasing"; Annie Besant. "I also owe a debt of gratitude to many Indian writers; in particular I would mention the writings of Bhagavan Das, whose book, The Science of Social Organisation or the Laws of Manu, I have used extensively in the introductory chapters"; E. J. Urwick, Preface to The Message of Plato. "The most interesting exposition of the Indian caste system with which I am acquainted is that which has been supplied by Bhagavan Das in his two writings on The Science of Social Organisation, and Social Reconstruction"; Prof. J. S. Mackenzie, in his Fundamental Problems of Life (1928). The Vedic Magazine, the monthly organ of the Gurukul, Kangri, published a series of articles summarising the work. Mrs. Adams Beck, in her Story of Oriental Philosophy (1930) transcribes and quotes extensively, and with high appreciation, from this work; "Bhagavan Das has written a remarkable book on The Laws of Manu... This is a passage of extraordinary beauty and insight..." etc. So also Lala Lajpat Rai in his Unhappy India. The monthly Prabuddha Bharata, of Calcutta, organ of the Rama-Krishna Mission, in its issue for August, 1932, says, at the beginning of a eulogistic review, "This is a marvellous book." The Modern Review of Calcutta published a very appreciative review. Dr. G. H. Mees, in his books, Dharma and Society (1935), and The Human Family and India (1938), quotes repeatedly from this work, and, expounds the same main ideas, ably and freshly, with variations here and there.

THE SCIENCE OF THE SACRED WORD, OR THE PRANAVA-VADA OF GARGYAYANA, 3 vols. "This unique treatise... The author's elucidations of the many statements in the text surpass in value his work which gave to the world two highly important works, The Science of the Emotions and The Science of Peace"; Dr. Sir Subramania Iyer, ex-Chief Justice of the Madras High Court; he published a synopsis of the work in a series of instalments in the Theosophist.

THE SCIENCE OF RELIGION, OR SANATANA VAIDIKA DHARMA. "Worthy of careful study by the younger generation of Hindus"; Sir Goporo Dass Bannerjee, ex-Judge of the Calcutta High Court. "I have again read it with great profit and pleasure, with admiration for the learning, earnestness of spirit, and elevated enthusiasm of the author... The presentation of the principles is very attractive to the English-educated mind"; Sir P. S. Sivaswamy Aiyer, ex-Executive Councillor of the Madras Government, and ex-Vice-Chancellor of the Madras and the Hindu Universities. "Has given me much pleasure... Ancient learning formally presented in a way intelligible and attractive to modern modes of thinking"; Sir John G. Woodroffe, (then) Judge of the Calcutta High Court, author of many publications on Tantra Shastra, Serpent-Power, Shakti and Shakta, etc., and co-editor of many Tantra Texts. "...An original production... laying down lines of thought which are extremely suggestive and full of independent interest...offering new points of view from which to survey world-problems"; Shri Satish Chandra Mukerji, M. A., B. L., ex-Editor of the Dawn, Calcutta. "A production of striking excellence..The fine poetic language is as noteworthy as the profound learning, the clear analysis, the vigorous logic, and the broad humanity of the book.. I am astonished at the felicity of expression and beautiful turn of phrasing in some places"; Prof. P. Seshadri, M. A., (then) of the Central Hindu College, Benares. "I have read your articles and book with interest and deep respect. They remind me strongly of Ruskin's views on social and national organisation..I feel deep sympathy with the purpose which you and Ruskin had in view in your writings"; Sir Michael E. Sadler, (1918), Vice-Chancellor of the University of Manchester, ex-President of the Calcutta University Commission.

ANCIENT VS. MODERN SCIENTIFIC SOCIALISM. "Full of useful suggestions...Every politically minded Indian should read it..The author is an acute observer of events and has logical acumen of the very first order..This strange (for India is asked to go back to the time of Manu) and brilliant thesis (brilliant for it seems to be proved that what Communism and Fascism are trying to establish had long ago been more successfully established by Manu;" review in the Forward of Calcutta, dated 28-1-1935. "The subject matter is one of profound interest....The Great Indian Lawgiver Manu has given us the plan of individual and social life with its planned education, planned family life, planned economy, planned defence-sanitation-judication, and planned religion-recreation-art. But how many of our economists know any thing about Manu and his comprehensive plan of life ?.....The little book deserves to be widely circulated and read"; the Hindustan Times, Delhi, dated 25-3-1935. "The Indian reformer is taunted as superficial, and a reconstruction is demanded, which will be thorough and at the same time suited to the tradition and the special needs of India. Few attempts have been made to meet this demand; but among them, the solutions offered by Dr. Bhagavan Das merit honorable mention. A life...has been devoted by him to the analytical and historical study of Indian problems. His known mastery of Eastern and Western thought has enabled him to offer singularly fresh interpretations of the old Indian Social Organisation and of its adaptability to modern requirements. His views demand the attention due to great erudition, acute reasoning, and knowledge of the world... He claims that the Hindu Scheme offers the middle course between individualism and socialism and alone reconciles conflicting claims. Each system which is criticised is described in the words of its latest exponents, the results of its working are given on the observations of competent critics, and the theory is judged by its practice.. A suggestive work, animated by the spirit of real altruism;" review, in the Hindu of Madras, dated 20-11-1934, by R. B. Prof. K. V. Rangaswami Iyengar, M. A. (for some years Director of Public Instruction, Travancore, and then, for some years, Principal of the Central Hindu College of the Benares Hindu University). "In this rebirth of Indian civilisation, the student and scholar concerned with the science of sociology comes across solutions, hoary with age and sanctified by centuries of vogue, which the superficial critic often either does not see, or seeing dismisses as fantastic. The venerable Dr. Bhagavan Das, better known by his unadorned name for his wide culture and saintly simplicity, has discharged a noble duty by addressing himself to the task of inviting public attention to the principles of ancient scientific socialism in comparison with those of its modern counterpart. In this study he shows up the contrast between a socialism that is based upon a materialist interpretation of history and a spirituo-mate-realistic interpretation thereof, between one that fosters class war and one that promotes class co-operation, between one, again, that stands for equality and one that stands for equitability. In other words, the contrast is between dictatorship, on the one hand, and a balanced distribution of power in society, so as to reconcile individual speciality with social solidarity, between a wholesale break with the past and a healthy preservation of tradition which makes the past live in the present and the present herald the future. In this system of ancient socialism, religion, family, and property are not abolished but are purified, by a control of priestcraft, financial jugglery, and individual selfishness. This is the argument of Bhagavan Das' thesis, and he pours into his work such a volume of learning, knowledge, and wisdom that it is impossible to cull out from this ocean of culture samples of its waters to prove to an ignorant, superstitious, and perverted world their true life-giving character. Yet we have to taste a few drops of this eternal spring, and satisfy our doubting minds that we have in our culture and in our institutions a well and truly laid foundation of a social system which applies, on a large scale, to society as a whole, the simple ideal of the joint family....."; Dr. B. Pattabhi Siteramayya, in the Tribune of Madras, for Oct, 1935, art: "Indian Socialism re-discovered". Mr. Jo. Henri Buchi, of London, discussed the book, in two articles, entitled, "Manu, Marx, and Engels", in the Hindustan Times (Delhi) in Aug-Sep., 1935.

THE ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS. This book has grown out of a paper read at the first All-Asia Education Conference, held in Benares, in December, 1930. The first section dwells on the world's 'Need for Scientific Religion'. and explains the three aspects of Religion. The second, expounds the Way of Knowledge. The third treats of the Way of Devotion. The fourth lays out the Way of Works. The fifth deals with 'the One Way to Peace on earth and Good-will among men'. The sixth discusses the relation, to the subject, of 'Education and the Educationist'. The seventh forms the 'Conclusion'.

Over 450 passages, from the Scriptures and Sacred Books of eleven living religions have been quoted, mostly in the original, transcribed into roman script with translations in English, and have been arranged in parallels, in appropriate sections and sub-sections, in the elucidative setting of exposition and comment. They prove how identical are the teachings of all the living religions, not only on all essential points, but even on many of those of secondary importance. There is no copyright in the book.

Shri Rabindranath Tagore, in a letter to the author writes: "Your work on Universal Religion has a profound significance for suffering humanity to-day torn by sectarian bias, bigotry, and general apathy for the abiding verities of life. It was greatly needed to reveal the fundamental plane of unity where the human mind meets in its diverse realisations, and to manifest the kinship of the great founders of religions who in different ages and countries have come with the message of the divine spirit of man. I am deeply grateful to you for your book."

"The book is full of aphorisms which delight us by their clear insight and ruthless pruning away of unessentials. Dr. Bhagavan Das makes a moving plea to us to enjoy rather the search for agreements than the usual critical search for differences. He emphasizes those agreements and builds them into a working philosophy and scheme of education"; The Theosophist (Madras) for April, 1933.

Sir S. Radhakrishnan, the most brilliant exponent of Indian Philosophy to the west today, wrote "...I shall certainly ask my students to read The Essential Unity of all Religions...I really believe that a book like this should be made accessible to all interested in the religious future of our country".

"When the first All-Asia Educational Conference met at Benares in December, 1930, Dr. Bhagavan Das delivered a magnificent address on The Essential Unity of All Religions...now revised, enlarged, and published in book form...Anything from the pen of Dr. Bhagavan Das is worth perusing, because not only do we find his deep learning in every page of his writings but his sincerity and devotion to service of fellowmen pervade the whole of them...."; The Leader (Allahabad), dated 2-6-1933.

"I have read and re-read with great interest The Essential Unity of All Religions by Dr. Bhagavan Das...It is a remarkable contribution to a more reasonable and intelligent method of arriving at the truth and unity of religious ideals. The marshalling of thoughts as well as the quotations cited...show wide range of study and patient research. The quotations of numerous texts...are very apt and exact, while the parallel passages cited, to illustrate the similarity of ideas of the Reformers and Founders of different systems of religion, are unique and remarkable for their forceful elucidation. The fascinating pages of the book tend to arrest the attention at every turn and clearly bring out the important fact that the religious minds of all ages revolve in the same spiritual grooves... that the essence of all religions is the same, that there is hardly any conflict in their ideals, and that rancour and discord of sects and sectarianism are mainly due to misunderstanding and lack of appreciation of one another's views. To the student of religious history, who desires to solve the problem of religious conflict and to understand in a rational manner the origin and development of religion itself, this unique book will be especially useful. It should be widely read and included in the curriculum of colleges...The Universities of India will do well if they recommend and prescribe such books for higher study"; Maulvi Wahid Husain (Advocate, High Court, Calcutta; Law Examiner, and ex-Extension Lecturer, Calcutta University; Secretary, Bengal Presidency Muhammadan Educational Conference).

"An opportune contribution on the subject. The author writes with a thorough knowledge of the principles of different religious scriptures. His knowledge of our Vedanta Philosophy is unique...He is just the person to have undertaken the task of bringing home to all, the fundamental unity of all religions. He has shown that the fundamentals of all religions are one and the same...A book like this was greatly needed at present when our unfortunate country is torn asunder by bigotry and communalism. I hope it will be included in the curriculum of our Colleges"; Acharya Dr. Sir P. C. Ray.

"Has appeared at the right psychological moment, when the several religions are being made the ground for dissensions of all sorts, on the one hand, and, on the other, the minds of our young men are being weaned from all Religion on the ground that that is the sole obstacle in the path of our political advancement. A perusal of the book will show that no religion sanctions in any way the animosities that have cropped up and are cropping up in our country, but that, on the contrary, all religions provide the same reasons for universal brotherliness and good will. The animosities have their root solely in motives which are superficial, sordid, often immoral; they are due, not to religion but to ir-religion. The book deserves to be placed in the hands of every young man, and also to be brought to the notice of all those elder persons who are wishing and working for the true welfare of the younger generations. The scholarly manner in which the main ideas have been presented makes the book fit for serious study in our Universities and Colleges. It will bring spiritual profit and pleasure to any person of intellectual tastes who will keep a copy by him, and dips, now and then, into the collections of fine parallel texts from the scriptures of the several religions, arranged amidst interweaving and systematising exposition"; Maha-mahopadhyaya Dr. Ganga Nath Jha, M. A., D Litt, Vice-Chancellor for nine years of the University of Allahabad.

"This small book of less than 300 pages, cannot be adequately praised. It is an inspired psychic plea for the unity of all religions. It is almost poetic in its expression like a Sufi song, which, while expressing deep philosophical truths has the capacity of taking the reader unawares by Beauty and giving some rare touch of the soul's inner rapture. In a very clear, simple, lucid style the author discloses to us the real aims, objects, and the Ideal of all our various conflicting religious strivings, and finally convinces the reader of their ultimate essential unity. The work is done with admirable care and masterliness and is replete with apt and carefully chosen quotations from almost all the scriptures of the world, and the sayings of many great religious masters and poets. There is hardly a page which does not contain a rare and inspiring quotation, and there are pages after pages where one softly glides on from quotation to quotation of rarest charm and beauty as well as of greatest spiritual wisdom. From the beginning to the end, the book is delightful, captivating, inspiring. The author performs his work so well and is so successful in it that one can safely say that after reading it even the most obstinate sceptic is bound to modify his views and get a broad vision of Truth ...There will be many who will be inspired and guided by this book and will find their way greatly cleared and illumined. Religion is something very intricate and complex ..This little book points the straight way with an unerring finger and is a very good guide to an individual wanderer as well as for the masses, and specially for India it will be of great help and use to dispel the dark clouds of superstition and ignorance that are floating over the atmosphere today...It is an extremely difficult task to apply the philosophical terms of one religion to another, for there are intricacies of thoughts and conceptions that differ greatly in their inner sense; but the accuracy with which it is done in this book is striking and extremely praiseworthy. The passages selected from various scriptures are appropriate and correct and its quotations do supply very instructive material for a comparative study of religions;" Syed Ibrahim Dara, profound scholar of Islamic mysticism and also of Indian philosophies, religions, and yoga, in the Triveni, of Madras, for May-June, 1933. in a letter to Dr. Bhagavan Das, Syed Dara wrote that "Shri Aurobindo Ghosh" (in whose Ashrama at Pondicherry he was then studying) "considers it a good book."

"Dr. Bhagavan Das has rendered a public service in bringing out such a useful and informing work...In these days of communal conflict and aggressive self-assertion it is a solace to be able to turn to a volume which attempts to prove that religion has its roots in Unity and not Strife...Every student ought to have the chance of going through this book to help him to realise that his own particular religion is but one aspect of a great harmonious whole and that the well-being of the individual as also of the race lies in trying to get at this Fundamental Unity...With his keen spiritual perception, brilliant intellect, and wealth of scholarship, Dr. Bhagavan Das was pre-eminently fitted for the task...which he has accomplished with such remarkable success;" Dr. G. N. Chakravarti, M.A., LL.B., D. Sc., D. Litt., Vice-Chancellor, for six years, of the Lucknow University.

"I read some extracts from your address on The Essential Unity of All Religions and found them extremely interesting and instructive. I am now glad to learn that you have expanded your address into a book, and have no doubt that the book will be welcome as a real contribution to the religious thought of our country"; Dr. Sir Mohammad Iqbal, M.A., Ph. D., Bar-at-Law, of Lahore, the most famous Urdu poet of the time.

CONCORDANCE-DICTIONARY TO THE YOGA-SUTRA-BHASHYA. "An important and instructive glossary-index"; M.M. Dr. Ganga Nath Jha, M.A., D. Litt. "Not only a concordance but a very full dictionary also;...bears ample evidence of the author's well-known masterly capacity of going deep into the meanings of words and vast comparative knowledge of eastern and western lore...Simply indispensable by every one who wishes to study the Yoga-Bhashya with the wish to judge the meanings of words and phrases independently.. Even more indispensable to one who wishes to study the Sanskrit text through the medium of the English language and in comparison with corresponding ideas of western psychology and philosophy;" Dr. Mangal Deva Shastri, M.A., D. Phil. (Oxon.), Principal, Government Sanskrit College, Benares.
